ENDLESS GAMES TO OFFER THE GODFATHER TRIVIA GAME

NEW YORK – December 18, 2007 -- Endless Games announced today that has entered an agreement with Paramount Pictures Consumer Products to create a trivia game based on The Godfather Trilogy. Endless Games has long understood the power of evergreen properties that endure with popular culture and has had many successes creating board games based on classic game shows. Now the company is expanding its library and offering an easy and fun way for movie lovers to engage in game play. The game will hit retail shelves next June with an MSRP of $15.99 for ages 13+.

Fans of The Godfather movies will be able to test their intimate knowledge of the five families as they collect cards from each one for correctly answered questions. Players will be able to build a ‘family’ with correct answers – the first player with ten members in a family wins. But, like life in the underworld, you can never be too sure who is part of the family and who has betrayed you -- players can order hits to add or lose family members while they test their memory and try to become “made.”

Endless Games, founded by industry veterans Mike Gasser, Kevin McNulty and game inventor Brian Turtle, specializes in games that offer classic entertainment and hours of fun. The three have an uncanny ability for discovering and developing hit games. Their record speaks for itself with successes such as: Trivial Pursuit™ Pictionary® and Six Degrees of Kevin Bacon™ to name a few. Recent efforts have focused on re-launch of several popular games from the 50s, 60s, 70s and 80s including the vastly popular reintroduction of the game Password™.
